

A Few Updates To Share!

1-12-13

Amity, a Belgian gelding rescued in October from the Mt. Hope Auction where he was going to slaughter, has now been adopted by Solid Rock Therapeutic Riding Facility in Hartville. Amity is now best friends with John, a military veteran, who has become Amity's caretaker and confidant.

Willow has become quite a jumper and can leap tall buildings, well, at least tall fences. She is the reason that we recently had to install higher fencing around the one pig area.

We recently completed demolition on an old garage to make way for the new rest rooms. We just broke ground this past week for the new building which will hold two heated rest rooms and a small area where our volunteers and animal care staff can get sit, relax and warm up. The foundation blocks were just set in place. This is very exciting for us!

Kachina the mini-horse was born crippled and her hooves did not form properly. She used to go to OSU in Columbus every six weeks to have acrylic hooves formed for her so that she could walk. We recently found an affordable blacksmith much closer who is able to do the same procedure for her, saving us the long trip to Columbus.