

You've really never seen ferrets playing in peanuts?

You may remember that HSUS was suing because the Raleigh Transit Authority refused to run our gestation crate bus ads. Well, now they've agreed to run them! HSUS also announced the filing of a new lawsuit this week challenging poultry giant Perdue's advertising of its chicken as "humane."

Want to know what's happening in New Jersey on the gestation crate front in a nutshell? Here's my latest Huffington Post piece.

Scientists are saying chickens are smarter than young humans, leading Nick Kristof to take up the issue in the NY Times, concluding that the only thing "bird-brained" about chickens is our rampant abuse of them.

Speaking of chickens, you should check out this extremely potent national Canadian news coverage of Mercy For Animals' latest investigation into the egg industry. Seeing this will make you even more grateful for the path-breaking work of Hampton Creek, as featured in Forbes this past week.

Paul Shapiro
Vice President, Farm Animal Protection
The Humane Society of the United States
Follow at <http://twitter.com/pshapiro>

Video of the week: Two ferrets; one box of Styrofoam peanuts...

Photo of the week: Thanks to those who clean trash from creeks! You make the mornings of marathon aspirants like me much more scenic!