

JUSTICE FOR Maggie!

BREAKING: ANIMAL ABUSERS
CONVICTED OF CRIMINAL CRUELTY

GIVE TODAY SO WE CAN KEEP WINNING FOR ANIMALS

Dear Supporter,

I was sickened by what I heard from our undercover investigator:

They kicked and beat her and knocked her down with the heavy wooden gate. They beat her face with a switch over and over, with so much force that the switch broke. She cried out loudly each time she was hit.

This is how Mercy For Animals' brave investigator described to me the torture he had observed on his very first day on the job at a livestock auction in Mississippi.

The poor animal the workers were mercilessly beating was a young white cow. Her tag said #648. But our investigator named her Maggie.

In the weeks that followed, our investigator collected shocking hidden-camera footage of workers viciously kicking, beating, punching, and dragging many other animals just like Maggie.

And now his diligent work has paid off.

Because of MFA's investigator, yesterday, four of these auction workers were brought to justice for the hell they put Maggie through when a judge convicted them of criminal animal cruelty.

Maggie finally got her day in court. And the landmark and precedent-setting convictions won on her behalf pave the way for a kinder future for farmed animals across the country.

But our battle has just begun.

There is much more work to be done to bring other animal abusers to justice, and we can't do it without your help.

Please give a special donation today to help Mercy For Animals keep fighting for justice for so many animals just like Maggie. With your help, we can continue to send our brave investigators behind the closed doors of factory farms to bring cruelty and abuse to light. Our work is having a real impact. Mercy For Animals is consistently at the forefront of legal advocacy for farmed animals. For example, we secured the first-ever felony cruelty conviction for birds killed for meat in U.S. history. Mercy For Animals' legal advocacy work has led to over 60 animal cruelty charges against 16 workers and companies, resulting in groundbreaking criminal convictions.

Few organizations fight as hard for animals in the courtroom as Mercy For Animals.

With your help, Mercy For Animals will continue to be a voice for animals in courtrooms. Please give today and stand with us as we give a powerful and uncompromising voice to farmed animals.
